

RULES FOR THE USE OF CERTIFICATION LOGO / MARK

INTRODUCTION

Now that the organisation has gained certification it may wish to use the WCS certification logos / accreditation marks to promote its achievement and communicate its certification to customers and interested parties.

Copies of the logos / marks should have been provided with your Certificate of Registration. Please advise WCS if this is not the case. Do not download logos from websites as they may be the incorrect version for use.

The logos / marks can be used in a variety of ways but please note there are rules for their use. It is an accreditation requirement that WCS ensures the logos are used in the correct manner. UKAS and ANAB both have strict rules covering the use of their accreditation mark and will review WCS controls during accreditation audits.

Consequently, to ensure that organisations fully understand how logos may be used, the following rules have been established.

Please note that if you use the logo / mark then it becomes an auditable event and WCS will monitor usage during ongoing surveillance audits.

- Accreditation Bodies will review the use of its logo when completing file reviews and witnessed assessments.
- WCS technical staff will also review websites and marketing material to ensure correct use.
- Any breach will result in a non-conformance being raised. Corrective action will be required.

CERTIFICATION STATEMENTS

If you are intending to include certification statements on sales / marketing material etc, the following guidance should be followed. Certification statements shall:

- Not imply that products, processes, or services are certified. The management system is certified.
- Not imply additional sites are certified if they are not included on the certificate.
- Not use misleading statements regarding certification (For example, imply that design is undertaken if this is not included in the scope of certification).
- Be linked to the name / brand of the company.
- Identify the type of management system certified. (ISO 9001, ISO 14001 etc).
- Identify that World Certification Services is the Certification Body.
- Be removed following withdrawal of certification.
- Not state that your organisation has gained/achieved "Accreditation"
- Not state that your organisation has gained/achieved "ISO9001/ISO14001/ISO45001 Accreditation" (as applicable)

WEBSITES

If you are intending to include certification statements, logos / marks on the company website you should be aware that WCS and Accreditation Bodies will monitor the use of these mark and review website content to ensure that the company is not misleading interested parties with regard to the certified activities of the company. If a website is found to include misleading information, then a non-conformance will be raised, and correction will be required.

Websites in general have been known to broaden, amplify the activities of a company and in some cases these activities are not included in the scope of certification. To minimise the risk of potential issues, WCS recommend including the scope of certification on the website or an up-to-date copy of your certificate.
